

(VCT) has become synonymous with high-stakes competitive gaming, and Revenant Esports' presence in Jakarta was a testament to the burgeoning talent pool within India. Their journey began with a dominant performance in the VALORANT Challengers South Asia series. This highlights how accessible platforms like VCT play an instrumental role in fostering grassroots esports development. It's a reminder that Indian gamers are not just participating but competing at the highest level, and the future looks brighter than ever.

Consistent regional tournaments play a crucial role in shaping the unique gameplay styles of different VALORANT communities. Just as China, Japan, and Korea are known for their systematic gameplay and South America for its aggressive gameplay, India has the opportunity to develop its own signature approach. By participating in more local and regional tournaments, Indian teams can refine their strategies and contribute something new to the global VALORANT scene.

Sukamal Pegu, Esports Lead, India & South Asia at Riot Games, highlighted the growing impact of the VCT on the Indian esports scene: "Revenant Esports' performance at VCT Ascension Pacific is a testament to the progress of esports in the region," he noted. "We are committed to nurturing this development and providing the platforms necessary for Indian gamers to succeed on global stages. We hope this inspires a new wave of Indian esports athletes to be motivated to reach their full potential."

Riot Games continues to solidify its position as a leader in competitive gaming, drawing top talent and captivating audiences worldwide. The thriving esports scene reflects a strong dedication to competitive gaming and a commitment to hosting world-class events. The VCT Pacific circuit had three splits in 2024 – Kickoff, Stage 1, and Stage 2. This format provides a framework for the competitive VALORANT season in the APAC region. Kickoff was an important phase as it qualified teams for Masters Madrid 2024. Stage 1 and Stage 2 served as qualifiers, culminating in the prestigious VALORANT Champions event.

This season saw Singapore's Paper Rex claim victory in Stage 1, while South Korea's Gen.G Esports emerged triumphant in Stage 2. The impact of this structured tournament circuit is undeniable. It has opened new doors for aspiring gamers, provided a clear path to success, and made esports a more viable and exciting career path.

VALORANT has been instrumental in fuelling the growth of esports in India, providing crucial infrastructure and inclusive tournament circuits across South Asia. The rise of underdog teams in the VCT signals a bright future for Indian esports, with increasing opportunities for players to reach new heights. As Indian teams continue to gain experience and make their mark on the international stage, the region's esports ecosystem will undoubtedly flourish, solidifying its place in the global VALORANT community.

With the next VCT season on the horizon, anticipation is building for another year of thrilling competition and exciting breakthroughs. The future of Indian esports is brimming with potential, and the world is watching.
