

JANNIK SINNER THWARTS AMERICANS TO CAPTURE FIRST US OPEN CROWN

European men have won the last 59 Grand Slam singles titles, a streak that started in 2009 after 20-year-old Argentine Juan Martin del Potro upset Roger Federer in the US Open final.

Paul Fein

Hopes for the first American Grand Slam men's singles champion since 2003 soared at the last Major of 2024. The bumper crop of talent from the region featured No. 12 Taylor Fritz, No. 13 Ben Shelton, No. 14 Tommy Paul, No. 16 Sebastian Korda, and No. 20 Frances Tiafoe.

The optimism turned into irrational exuberance when Novak Djokovic was upset by a much-improved 28th-seed Alexei Popyrin in the third round, and four-time Major winner Carlos Alcaraz suffered a straight-sets loss to 74th-ranked Botik van de

Zandschulp. "You talk about a shocker," said ESPN's John McEnroe. "It has to be at the top of the all-time shockers."

The Djokovic loss meant that, for the first time since 2002, no member of the legendary Big Three would capture a Grand Slam title in the same year. Instead, Jannik Sinner,