

```
inorderTraverse(root);
</script>
```

The output of these programs looks like this:

```
D B A G E H C F
```

Inorder traversal typically refers to the traversal of binary trees, although processing a node's data after traversing the first node and before traversing the last node would count as inorder traversal for trees of any size.