IOC chairman unveils Sportstar's special World Para Athletics edition

Arvinder Singh Sahney, Chairman of Indian Oil Corporation (IOC), unveiled Sportstar's special World Para Athletics edition at the PlayCom 2025: Business of Sports Summit, jointly hosted by Sportstar and KPMG at Bharat Mandapam, New Delhi.

Sahney said IOCL's partnership with Sportstar reflected a long-standing vision of using sport as a catalyst for nation-building and social change.

"Our belief has always been that sport goes far beyond just chasing medals and glory. That is what Indian Oil stands for when we associate ourselves with sport," he noted.

IndianOil has backed para athletics at the Asian Para Games 2022, the World Para Shooting Championships 2024, and the Paris 2024 Paralympics, where India returned with 29 medals.

Sahney also lauded the achievements of Sheetal Devi, an IOCian — the world's first female armless archer — as a source of immense pride. "We have been consistent supporters of all sports. A key contribution is the IndianOil Divyashakti programme — a pioneering scholarship initiative for 100 para-athletes across 16 sports, with half the slots reserved for women. Eight Divyashakti athletes have secured qualification for the 2025 World Para Athletics Championships in Delhi."

Sahney said the IndianOil-Sportstar coffee-table book on the country's sporting history and the new World Para Athletics edition mark milestones in a partnership aimed at inspiring future generations. "What drives us is our commitment to the youth and to the larger vision of developing a vibrant sporting ecosystem for the country," Sahney added.
