

« First, I must be clear that I have the utmost respect for the U.S. swimmers that competed at the World Championships. My criticism is in no way directed at them. – 23-time Olympic gold medallist Michael Phelps launched a scathing attack on USA Swimming’s leadership. »

« I’m super excited because I’m seeing the progression. I know something great is going to happen. My body is showing that it’s adjusting to the speed.” – Noah Lyles, looking forward to defending his 100m and 200m titles at the 2025 Worlds in Japan »

New Chair

Tiger Woods was named the Chair of the PGA Tour’s new future competition committee by CEO Brian Rolapp, who is tasking the nine-person panel to bring “significant change” to the current model for Tournament golf competition. Rolapp said the goal is to optimise the game for players, fans and Tour partners as Woods was told to apply a “clean sheet” mentality and invite input from players, fans, sponsors and partners.

No crisis

Badminton World Federation (BWF) Secretary-General Thomas Lund said the ongoing shuttlecock shortage has not yet reached a “crisis level”, but stressed that manufacturers must resolve supply chain issues and accelerate the roll out of advanced synthetic options for players worldwide. Prices of imported feather shuttles have more than doubled in the past year due to a raw material crunch in China.

TESTING TIMES

Taiwanese Olympic champion boxer Lin Yu-ting will undergo compulsory gender testing ahead of the world championships in Liverpool. Lin and Algerian boxer Imane Khelif were embroiled in a gender row at the 2024 Paris Olympics, where they both won gold medals in different weight classes. World Boxing has said that women wanting to compete at the World Boxing Championships would have to undergo “mandatory sex testing” under its new policy. ^{AFF}
