Tim David blasted an unbeaten 102 off just 37 balls against West Indies, setting a new record for the fastest T20I century by an Australian. Walking in at 61/3 in the sixth over of the third match, David unleashed a brutal assault—hammering 11 sixes and six fours—to power Australia to a chase of 215 with 23 balls to spare. The win gave Australia an unassailable 3-0 lead in the five-match series. David's century surpassed the previous Australian record held by Josh Inglis, who scored a 43-ball ton against Scotland last year. Australia carried that momentum through the final two games as well, completing a dominant 5-0 series sweep.

Two stunning catches in the final over from fast bowler Matt Henry's (above) bowling sealed a thrilling three-run win for New Zealand over South Africa in the tri-series final in Harare. With South Africa needing a late surge, Michael Bracewell produced a moment of brilliance on the mid-wicket boundary, leaping to dismiss the dangerous Dewald Brevis for 31. Moments later, Daryl Mitchell followed up with a full-stretch, two-handed grab at long-on to remove George Linde. South Africa finished on 177/6, falling just short, as the Black Caps held their nerve to lift the title.
