

Another key milestone is the planned revival of Patna's Moin-ul-Haq Stadium, once the heartbeat of cricket in the region. The government has signed a memorandum of understanding with an institution affiliated with the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) to upgrade and modernise the stadium.

planned revival of Patna's Moin-ul-Haq Stadium, once the heartbeat of cricket in the region. The government has signed a memorandum of understanding with an institution affiliated with the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) to upgrade and modernise the stadium.

This partnership ensures technical expertise and credibility. Once revamped, the stadium will be capable of hosting high-profile domestic and international matches. For local players, it means exposure to top-tier events without leaving home — and for fans, a chance to witness world-class sports in their own backyard.

A Bold Leap into the Future

The Chief Minister's Sports Development Scheme is not merely a government program — it is a visionary project with the power to transform lives, uplift communities, and reshape Bihar's identity.

It is inclusive in design, ambitious in scale, and grounded in the belief that every child deserves a chance to dream, train, and excel.

As stadiums rise, scholarships reach young athletes, and training centres nurture hidden talent, Bihar is scripting a new narrative — one of strength, stamina, and spirit.

The impact of this transformation will be felt not just in medals and records, but in the confidence of its youth, the unity of its communities, and the pride of its people.

In the next decade, when Bihar athletes' step onto global podiums or take centre stage in national leagues, their journey will trace back to this bold, visionary step.

Bihar is not just playing the game — it is changing the rules.
