Esports, in its infancy, has always been a vocation in entertainment: gaming has been looked down as a pastime rather than a competitive sport. That belief has now transcended into a realm of competition, gaming enthusiasts have become virtual athletes, and the gaming parlours have become colosseums.

Esports, now a multi-billion-dollar industry, is a medal sport at the Asian Games. It is no longer knocking on the door of mainstream sport, it's kicking it down.

A fresh new chapter of that will be the Esports World Cup 2025, set to be played in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, between July 8 and August 24. The tournament will have 26 events across 25 titles with a prize pool of a whopping USD 70 million, the biggest in an esports event ever.

Galaxy of stars

The World Cup aims to draw more people into the tournament through glamour, traditional sports and entertainment.

And who does it turn to? Cristiano Ronaldo, a Portugal
