

Top draw: (clockwise from above) All eyes will be on Armand Duplantis, who has broken the world record 13 times in pole vault, 100 and 200m world champion Noah Lyles and Femke Bol, the favourite in 400m hurdles. AP and AFP

Warholm becoming the first-ever man to break the 46-second barrier to beat the USA's Rai Benjamin and Brazil's Alison dos Santos. The trio will reunite on the same track, raising hopes of another epic showdown. Dutchwoman Femke Bol will be the overwhelming favourite in the women's 400m hurdles, as world record holder Sydney McLaughlin-Levrone has opted to compete in the 400m flat, where she will challenge the likes of Salwa Eid Naser and Marileidy Paulino.

Portuguese race walker Joao Vieira and French discus thrower Melina Robert-Michon are on the cusp of achieving major milestones. The 49-year-old Vieira, listed to compete in the 35km race walk, will set a new men's record of 14 World Championships appearances, while the 46-year-old Robert-Michon will equal the record of World Championships appearances by a woman (11).
