1 South Africa had won the opening game against England by seven wickets and edged the second by five runs

South Africa suffered the heaviest defeat in ODI history as England bowled it out for just 72 in a 342-run thrashing inspired by Jofra Archer's blistering spell and Jacob Bethell's maiden century.

Chasing 415 in Southampton, the Proteas collapsed inside 21 overs. It was the biggest margin of victory in ODIs when batting first, surpassing India's 317-run win over Sri Lanka in 2023.

Despite the humiliation, South Africa had already clinched the series 2-1, having won the opening game by seven wickets and edging the second by five runs.
