everywhere. I got a bit overwhelmed. My preparation was good, but I lacked execution. But after that match, I never looked back." It took six matches before his real game surfaced.

Two seasons on, Yogesh has become one of the league's most ruthless and tactically sharp defenders. With 149 tackle points from 45 matches and a 55 per cent success rate, he stands among the elite. Tall, aware, and versatile, he blends technical skill with raw athleticism. It is telling that seasoned coach B.C. Ramesh has chosen him as a cornerstone of the Bulls' defence. Despite the price tag, Yogesh stays unfazed. He embraces the responsibility and relishes Ramesh's distinctive approach. "Corner defenders are the pillars of the team. Ramesh sir plays a specific brand of kabaddi, which is very enjoyable. It is built on a lot of trust among the teammates, and I feel ready," he says.

After two successful seasons in Delhi, Yogesh now aims to anchor Bengaluru's defence and bring back glory to the 'Garden city'.
