

Change of rule: Until 2022, players could only review on-field decisions for dismissal, but that has not been the case in the IPL since 2023 with teams now reviewing wides and bouncers. SPORTZPICS / IPL

a game played between 11 players who are decided before the toss is made. The referrals for wides and bouncers should be done away with because they upset the rhythm and flow of the game. It is never going to have an impact on the game, like a wrong decision for out or not out can. So, its removal is a must. The countdown for 60 seconds between overs is excellent, and it meant most matches finished well within accepted delays. Those captains who couldn't make up their minds suffered not just fines but also the penalty of having one fielder less outside the 30-metre circle for the last over.

It was a very riveting two months of cricket, and just when people were wondering how to pass their evenings after the IPL ended, the ICC T20 World Cup started and promises to be another exciting contest.

India look good, and if they have a bit of luck, the trophy could be back in the real home of cricket, India.

The IPL once again showed how performances in local and state leagues don't matter at all. The gap in standard is seen when the stars of these state leagues are batting or bowling against international-quality players.
