After two of four games were washed out in the T20I series between England and Pakistan, the former won the remaining matches against the visitor to claim a 2-0 series win. The opening game was abandoned without a ball bowled, while the second game witnessed a 51-ball 84 from captain Jos Buttler to help England win by 23 runs. With the third game also being foiled due to the rains, Pakistan couldn't level the series, and the host went on to win the fourth match by seven wickets to secure the series.
