

Neeladri Bhattacharjee
neeladri.b@thehindu.co.in

Success in sports depends on a lot of things, such as the quality of players, their form, and fan support. But, on matchday, it narrows down to the most fundamental factor in the game: whoever plays better wins.

Mumbai City FC taught Mohun Bagan Super Giant, to which it had lost 1-2 in the final game of the ISL League stage, to relinquish the Winners Shield, a lesson in just that, beating it 3-1 in the Indian Super League (ISL) final at the Salt Lake Stadium on May 4.

Mumbai, having done better homework about its opponent, executed its plan to perfection and pulled off a comeback win over the Mariners to stun a 62,000-strong crowd, most of whom were Mohun Bagan fans. The Bagan supporters, who had taken two hours to fill the stadium, started making their way for the exit after Mumbai's second goal — Bipin Singh's strike in the 81st minute — and, within 20 minutes of full-time, the stadium was near-empty.

The presentation ceremony took place with a handful of Mumbai fans cheering from the stands, waving scarves of the West Coast Brigade, the team's official fan club.

The Islanders began the match on